Using WinHex on a BlackBerry

It is the twenty-first century and cell phones have become ubiquitous. Most of the citizens residing in first-world developed nations have relatively inexpensive access to cell phone technology and rate plans. Tech companies like Apple, Microsoft, Google, and Samsung rule the burgeoning cell phone market and continue to develop new versions of their products on almost an annual basis. This practice makes it practically impossible for the average middle class American to keep up with the proverbial “Joneses” and have the latest iPhone or
